NEW YORKS AGAIN SWALLOWED UP BY THE BROOKLYNS.

Ewing's Tail-Enders Outclassed With Ridien lous Ease-Bostons Bury the Philadelphias Under a Pile of Russ-St. Louis Whitewashes Cincinnati-Other Games and Gossip The New York tail-enders were again very easy for the Brooklyns yesterday, and as the Philadelphias were literally buried by the ostons, Hanlon's men increased their lead to 52 points, a reasonably safe margin. The stons got up to the .500 mark again, but they have no cinch on third place as yet. As St Louis whitewashed Cincinnati the New Yorks' hold upon the tail end was tightened. Ewing's experts are now 50 points behind the seventh team. The results: Brooklyn, 15; New York, 2.

Boston 20; Philadelphia, 4 St. Louis, 2; Cincinnati, 0

BROOKLYN, 15; NEW YORK, 2.

If anybody with eyes doubted the superiority of the Brooklyns over the New Yorks before yesterday's contest, so called, began at Washington Park, he must have been wholly convinced after the slaughter that Ewing's tailenders have a right to the place they occupy at present. Beaten by the Champions at the Polo Grounds on Saturday by a score of 12 to 1, and shown up like a lot of minor leaguers, the New Yorks were even easier prey yesterday, and before five innings had been completed the crowd of 2,500 cranks was laughing and jeering to its heart's content. There was as much difference between the teams as between gold and tin, and those who have been trying to tell the cranks that the New Yorks have been up against hard luck, the unpires and other obstacles, looked very small indeed. Manager Ewing sat on the bench with the New York layers and looked blue. His hands were completely tied. When Selbach in the ninth mining with a man on first base and two out, the score being 15 to 2, tried to bunt, Ewing simply turned his face to the wall. That was merely a sample of the way the tail-enders played. There were not many scorable errors, to be sure. But when fity bails dropped among three fielders, not one of whom knew whether to make the catch or not; when tileason stood still with his back to first base and didn't see a chance to throw Cross out by yards; when Hickman left third base uncovered and stood still mear the pitcher's box watching Hawley field a bunt, and when as a result Doyle threw the hall past third base to the grandstand, it was somewhat easy for the critics to see just why the New Yorks are last in the race for the League pennant, and are liable to stay there, too. The Brooklyn had a regular batting pieric. They snocked the overworked Carrick out of the box in the second inning by making seven clean singles all in a row. Then Hawley, who practises before a looking glass, went in to stem the tide. He stayed in the box four inninge, doring which time the Chempions waxed his speed for twelve singles. Af If anybody with eyes doubted the superiorty of the Brooklyns over the New Yorks before twenty-three sare hits, not one of which could be called a scratch.

Kennedy was a Duzzle all the way through. In the first inring, after the first three men at the bat had hit safely, only one New York man got in, and that was due to a base on balls to Doyle, the only free pass handed out by the Brooklyn pitcher. New York's other run in the eighth was a free gift. Van Haltran hit for three bases and walked home on a short passed ball which Farrell made no attempt to recover. Lathem umpited in the place of O'Day, who is laid up, and hie work was of a high standard. Still Grady, Doyle and Gleason kicked in the early stages of the game on what they termed

ST. LOUIS, June 25.—The rehabilitated Cardinals whitewashed the Reds to-day. It was a pitchers' battle, Powell twirling for the hometeam and Breienstein for the Reds. PLAINFIELD, June 25.—The tie between Miss Edith Hyde and C. W. Fisk and Miss Edith Tracy and Thomas R. Van Boskirk, in the play for the Gilbert Cup for mixed foursome on Saturday last, was played off this afternoon on the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club course. The play was just as interesting and close as the first contest, when each made a net score of 101. Miss Hyde and Mr. Fisk, with a handicap of 5, won to-day's play by a net score of 102, while their oponents with a handicap of four, scored 105. Throughout the competition the contessants were very close of strekes and up to the last hole they were even.

The Fairview Park links are now in fine condition. Yesterday a foursome was played between J. V. Simpson and J. L. Taylor against G. A. Fish and A. T. Rose. The latter pair won by 4 up and during the match Rose made a new record for the San Juan Hill hole. 253 yards—

IN IMPRESSIVE STYLE. Pink Domine Also Scores in the Keene Colors -A Great Afternoon for Winning Favorites and New Records at Sheepshead Bay .- Spencer and Ransch Show Fine Form.

The card at Sheepshead Bay track yesterday was raised above the average standard by a stake event and two handicaps. Visitors thronged to the picturesque enclosure as much in pursuit of ocean breezes as "good things" and the attendance was large for a Monday outing. The coveted breezes made the round trip edly comfortable, but, while seated in the stand, patrons fairly wilted, the back of the huge structure almost entirely shutting off every cool current. Regulars quickly discovered that for once the ring with its skelefon frame, was the most desirable breathing spot. and they camped there all day with great profit to themselves. Three favorites rolled in before there was a break in the sequence. The fourth race was a hard facer for the plungers but they were strong enough to stand it and get back or velvet in the fifth. They must also have broken better than even on the last event as the winner was almost as well played as anything else in the race.

It was a great day for the Keene colors and Keene jockeys, the "white, blue spots" catching the judges' eye twice, while out of the five races run on the flat, four were split up be tween the stable riders. Spencer and Ransch. Clawson took the odd event, by an artistic effort five races run on the flat, four were split up between the stable riders. Spencer and Ransch. Clawson took the odd event. by an artistic effort on Gold Heels in the first race. The Bard's son figured to be the best but in the large field of thirteen as good as it to 5 could be had against him. The race was run over the last five furlongs of the new course and after Browndale disputed the lead to the last pole, Gold Heels drew away and won cleverly in fast time. The defeat of Browndale was a sad blow to many of the wise ones who had plunged on the Faverdale colt until his odds tumbled from 10 to 1 to 4 to 1. The time is a record for the distance on the new course and pretty close to the mark of 0:59-2-5 set up over the old route by the flying Correction six years ago.

Gold Heels was entered to be sold for $500 and Mike Clancy saw another opportunity of filling "that vacant stall." He boosted the winner up to $2,500 and then let him go to the owner, who lost over $1,900 by the success of his colt, while the Oneck Stable raked in $950 in addition to second money.

Well-played tips on nearly everything else in the second race left Blue Devil's odds as high as 5 to 2. He took the track after a good break, and forcing the pace throughout, won driving by a length a half from Jack Point in time which cut a fraction off the course record made by the four-year-old Discount, with 110 pounds up, in 1895.

A rumor that Trainer James Rowe was about to uncover Commando, a youngster of even greater speed and class than Cap and Belis, scared more than half the candidates out of the Zephyr Stakes. The event was for two-year-olds over the old Futurity course, and the five candidates got in at even weights. Commando ruled a top-heavy favorite and scared his backers by flighty conduct at the barrier. He got off well in line with the others finally, and after swerving a couple of times in front of King Pepper, he struck a bee line for the winning pôst at an awfui clip. The others struggled gamely to stay with the latest product of Oread, one of the first choices in the closing event at Sheepshead Bay yesterday, was severely kicked and his boy also received a clip that caused him to dismount. This probably had something to do with the fact that Oread hung behind the bunch at fiagfail and ran such a poor race afterward.

E. D. Morgan's six-year-old bay horse Blue Devil is building up a big reputation in the hands of Trainer James Boden. Yesterday's victory made the horse's record for the season four wins out of four starts, and as he carried top weight in his latest effort, it will be pretty hard to beat him while he retains his present speed and condition.

Jockey James Mara, on whom Ronkonkoma fell during the steeplechase last Saturday, is lying at his home, near Sheepshead Bay track, in a critical condition. In addition to a compound smash in the region of the shoulder and coliar bone, he is suffering from partial concussion of the brain, and is said to be unconacious most of the time. The doctors, however, hope to pull him through.

Mike Clancy is becoming a source of unexpected revenue to the Coney Island Jockey Club. Since he tost his noted gift horse and bread winner, Maximo Gomez, the "Irish King" is hot on the trail of sellingrace bargains. He boosted Harlem Lane on Saturday and Gold Heels yesterday, but the owners outstayed him. Mike is perfectly within his rights, especially as he is bidding on the horses for the legitimate reason that he wants them.

Mouroe Stope Haley at the Sampson A. C. Patsy Haley of Buffalo, who about two years ago was looked upon as one of the cleverest men in his class, was defeated by George Monroe, Terry McGovern's sparring partner, at the Sampson A. C. last night. The end came in the sixteenth round. Monroe was about to administer a knockout blow, but Haley's seconds, to save their man further punishment, threw up the sponge. The bout was one of the fastest contests witnessed in this vicinity in a long time. Haley showed some of his former skill, but he could not stand the fierce onslaughts of Monroe, who wore him down with hard body blows. The betting favored Haley at Sto 2, as many of the sports believed he would outpoint his man. The bout was scheduled for twenty-five rounds at 115 pounds ringside.

In the first bout Jack Dallon of New York fought Kid Tulley of Brooklyn. They were scheduled to go ten rounds at 105 pounds. Tulley was knocked out in the first round with a swing on the jaw. In the next bout Dallon appeared again, this time against Jack Downes of Brooklyn. The conditions were ten rounds at 105 pounds. It was declared a draw. Champion Jim Jeffries arrived in town last night from the West. It is the big boilermaker's first visit since he knocked Jim Corbett out. Jeffries' left arm, which was injured in his fight with Corbett, was in a plaster cast.

The champion says he will remain in the East and fight either Sharkey or Fitzsimmons again before Sept. 1. He will be present at the fight to-night at Coney Island. He thinks it ought to be a good one.

IN PLACE OF HIGGINSON. HARDING SUCCEEDS THE INJURED CAPTAIN AS HARVARD'S STROKE.

> Put in 'Varoity-Bancroft Brought Back--Yale the Favorite- New Haven Freshmen Win Toss for Choice of Course GALES FERRY, June 25 .- While the hot rays of the sun were pourning down on the Thames River course this morning the Yale and Harvard coaches were busy putting the finishing ouches on the crews before they entered their respective races on Thursday. Coack Storrow had practically decided on Sunday night to put Harding, who was at 2 in the 'Varsity boat, at stroke in place of Capt. Higginson. Harding's position was given to Bullard, who was at 2 in the four-oar, and Guy Bancroft, recently stroke of the four-oar, was again put back in the boat, occupying the seat vacated by Bullard. Harding has had a great deal of experience as troke in club and class races on the Charles River. At Red Top the oarsmen congratulated themselves that they had in Bullard a good successor to Higginson, and feel confident that the crew as now made up will give Yale a grand race if it does not win. The crew did not care to elect another captain in Higginson's place, and requested their crippled stroke to appoint a new captain in his stead. Charles M. Sheafe. at 7, was chosen, and the crew will be under his wing until the race is rowed. Higginson's injured ankle bothered him con siderably during the night, but he managed to catch a little sleep, and to-day he was carried from his room in the training quarters to the west veranda, where he could watch the crews at practice. He was quite comfortable during the day, and arrangements were made so that he will sleep in the large tent near Red Top. Dr. Darling said this evening that his patient was progressing favorably, but it would be some time yet before he will be able to walk. All the crews got only light practice this morning on account of the heat. Yale's crews did not row on the course this evening, but practiced starts and short stretches on the river above the boathouse. There have been no hanges in either the Yale 'Varsity or freshmen eights since Auchinclose, at 6 in the freshman boat, was replaced by Sargent last week At 6 o'c.ook this evening, when the Yale freshmen were leaving the boathouse for their practice, the Harvard Varsity eight rowed up the river and the New Haven paramen received a good opportunity to inspect the crew that will row Yale in the four-mile race. The 'Varsity earsmen from New Haven were sojourning in the summer house previous to the Cambridge eight's appearance, but they all hurried down the hill to the wharf and watched the Crimson crew as it rowed past their quarters. Dr Gallaudet was one of the most interested spec-crew as it rowed past their quarters. Dr. Gallaudet was one of the most interested spectators in the crowd.

They row mighty well together," the coach elaculated, without removing the field glasses he had focused on the swiftly moving crew. "Harding is pulling a clever oar at stroke and Bullard is also doing well in his new position."
The Harvard men rowed a short distance above Broadview and returned to their float, awaiting the freshman crew's appearance on the river. The two eights had scarcely got away from the floats when two large steam yachts were seen coming up the river at full speed. Storrow and Goodrich, the coaches, who were aboard the launch John Harvard, evidently saw the yachts at the same moment, for they started in simultaneously with their megaphones, shouting to the crews to lay to and be ready for the wash from the yachts. The steamers were the Tillies and Narwhal, owned by ex-Mayor Fred Osgood of Norwich and his brother, Charles H. Osgood. There was apparently a race on between the two pleasure craft.

The warning given to the crews was just in time to save them from being swamped, as huge billows came rolling in that threatened every moment to capsize the frail shells with their occupants. When the waves had passed the launch and shells and reached the float fronting the Harvard boathouse they did considerable damage. The great logs that support the float were wrenched from their fastenings, and there was general havoc about the boathouse in a short space of time. The two pair-oar shells on the float were dashed aside, and all the oars and boating paraphernais were sidding promiscuously about the place. The Harvard coaches and oarsmen condemned the captains of the yachts in strong language, and hoped there would never be a repetition of the event on the river while they were here.

Capt E. Roberts and J. B. Ayer, Jr., of the Harvard freshunge eight, called upon Cache.

Gordon Brown and Capt. Schley of the Yale freshmen late this afternoon and tossed for the position on the course on Thursday. Yale won and selected the east station.

In a half-mile scrap this evening Harvard's 'Var-ity crew led the freshmen by nearly a boat's length. Capt. Roberts, when asked what his chances were of winning, replied:

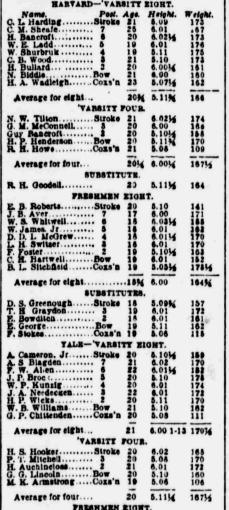

"Oh, I guess the freshman crew can give Yale a fast race and we ought to be able to do a good job."

Yale a last race and we ought to be able to do a good job."

The hotels are already filling up with boat race visitors, and a large crowd is expected to witness the contests. The mishap to Higginson has had a tendency to throw the betting with the sporting fratwrinty in Tale's favor, but there are many who yet believe the Harvard crew will win. Higginson's father is at Red Top, and will probably remain with his son until after race day.

THE CREWS AT POUGHKEEPSIE. Courtney Pleased With the Cornell Mon -Columbia's Great Work.

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 25 .- The attitude taker y Courtney with regard to the chances of Cornell's 'Varaity aight in the five-cornered struggle on next Saturday is puzzling those who have been accustomed to see him disinclined to speak one way or the other on the subject. He seem to feel more confident in the 'Varsity this year than on any previous visit to Poughkeepsie including 1806 and '97, when Cornell won, and 1898 and '99, when Cornell failed. To the correspondent of THE SUN to-day Courtney said: I have not seen the other crews in practice, but the Cornell men are trained to a point where the crews do not need any more hard work. Last not fit to go the distance, and I said so. I picked the winners just before the race, and the result fled my prediction in every instance."

vania crew won the race on merit last year and stated that the failure of the University of Wisstated that the failure of the University of wisconsin eight to keep in the course was not due to a berry crate, but to the weakening of two of the men. He further said that he thought Old Penn should receive full credit for a hardearned victory. Of the race on Saturday he observed frankly that Cornell would "go the distance." He made this remark positively and in a manner that gave it significance. Referring to the accident to Capt. Hisginson, stroke of the Harvard Varsity orew. Courtney said that he was sorry to hear of it, but that he could not help criticising Higginson for not taking better care of himself, if not for his own sake at least for the other members of the crew. Ever since Lehmann put the Crimson oarsmen on a champagne diet the last time Harvard trained for a race on the Hudson there has been a tendency on the part of coaches to be more liberal in the use of stimulants. The Columbia oarsmen are allowed to eat pie and drink Bass's ale at meals. Courtney, however, sticks to the old-fashioned training table from which all stimulants are excluded.

If don't mean that I wouldn't give a man something to stimulate him in an emergency, for I have and will do it, he said, "but I have found that in a protracted contest, like a fourmile boat race, stimulants weaken the men. I believe that if God meant that men should use beer freely he would have had it flowing out of the rocks like water."

believe that if God meant that men should use beer freely he would have had it flowing out of the rocks like water."

The Cornell eights went out for their first practice row this morning. They went down the river three miles to the "Pennsy" boathouse and received a hearty greeting by the Quakers. They put in about six miles before returning to the boathouse at Crum Elbow for a rub-down and dinner. The afternoon was spent taking it easy. After 6 o'clook the crews took a pull over the upper course, staying out less than one hour. The Wisconsins went out late in the morning and early in the afternoon. It was intensely warm on the water at the time and they cut the practice short. Old Penn's crews went out at 10:30 o'clock and rowed to the head of the course. The 'Varsity eight on the return rowed out the full four miles, scrapping with the freshmen for a couple of miles. This afternoon the Quakers left their boathouse and rowed up on the west shore shortly after the Wisconsins had gone down on the bridge, from the head of the course, a distance of three miles.

The Columbia eight put in a long session at east shore. The crews went down to the bridge, from the head of the course, a distance of three miles.

The Columbia eight put in a long session at practice in the morning and again in the afternoon. Hanian is doing so well that he will coach the crews next year. The 'Varsity eight did excellent work this afternoon. The 'freshies' have been pretty well shaken up and if they do not pull the two miles out in good shape on Saturday it will not be Hanian's fault. Orr, the stroke, was put in at 4, this morning, and Townsend took his place.

The physical condition of some of the members of the Wisconsin 'Varsity eight is exci ing concern. Two of the men, Anderson and Street, were knocked out by the heat this morning, and although it is believed that they will be all right soon, their places in the shell were taken by substitutes in the afternoon. The change in the alr and food, it is surmised, may cause trouble for the Badgers before Saturday.

W. D. Grand's last trotting sale for this season will be held at the Horse Exchange on the evenings of Thursday and Friday under the management of Ed S. Hedges, former secretary of the Driving Club of New York. About seventy-five track, road and park horses have been catalogued. Most of the trotters and pacers having fast records are to be sold on Thursday. Among the number is the noted Kansas pacer William Wallace Scribner, that won a heat from Anconda in 2:08% at the Columbus Grand Circuit meeting of 1898. Other consignments from A. C. Pennock, J. F. Scott and J. F. Cavanaugh include such horses as The Maine, 2:26%, by Simmons out of Belle Cassett, 2:13%; Rosebrino, 2:23%; Annie M., 2:25. C. R. J., 2:20%, and Bud Onward, 2:11%. John Nolan, the sensational trotter that came out green in the spring of 1898 and gained a record of 2:08 in his first campaign, has been sold by J. E. Hubinger of New Haven to O. G. Kent of Cleveland. The horse is now in the training stable of W. O. Foote, who will probably start him at the Detroit and Cleveland Grand Circuit meetings before turning him over to his new owner. Mr. Kent, who is a prominent member of the Cleveland Driving Club, bought Nolan to drive in the amateur wagon races given by that organization.

Mr. Olsen has sneaked away from America without giving me a return match. Therefore I am going over to his own home and try to get him to meet me. Mr. Philip Dieterich will back me for $5,000 against any man in Europe, so I cannot see how Olsen can get out of giving me a return match. I am in good health and feel as though I will be victorious."

SHARKEY EXPECTED TO WIN

ON FIGHTING FORM HE LOOKS TO BE RUHLIN'S MASTER.

But the Akron Pugilist's Followers Say That Their Man May Surprise the Sports When He Puts Up His Hands in the Ring at Coney Island To-night - The Betting. If Thomas Sharkey fails to whip Gus Ruhlin, the "Akron Giant," at Coney Island to-night, followers of ring contests will be very much surprised. If the Sailor has not trained may find his hands full, for Ruhlin has prepared himself with great care and is in magificent trim. On form Sharkey looks to be the better pugilist in many ways. He is quicker than Ruhlin both in the matter of foot work and delivering blows, and is also more aggressive, in fact the most aggressive fighter

Two years ago Sharkey knocked Ruhlin out "in a punch." Gus didn't expect such a quick ending, and was slowly getting down to work after the first bell rang when Thomas dashed in with a wallop on the chin that put the big man on his back in jig time. But since then Ruhlin has improved and to-day he is regarded as formidable enough to give the Sailor a hard tussle. Ruhlin's best performance after his knockout at the hands of Sharkey was a flerce twenty-round draw with Peter Maher. Both men gave and took severe punishment, but without a decisive knockout. From his showing with Maher the talent were led to believe that Ruhlin possessed remarkable gameness and stamina and there has been no reason since to change this opinion. Ruhlin's work with Corbett was also be-ieved to have been beneficial. In fact Corbett himself has said that Gus learned enough to make him a most dangerous opponent. Jim also believes that Ruhlin has a chance to win by standing off Sharkey's rushes with the left hand and in that way jarring the Sailor so that he will be a comparatively easy mark for rightwould like to have Ruhlin adopt the tactics used by Jeffries when the champion used by Jeffries when the champion met Sharkey's assaults so successfully at the bland would like to have Ruhlin adopt the tactics used by Jeffries when the champion met Sharkey's assaults so successfully at the baland last fall. It all rests with Ruhlin, though, and that is where the guessing comes in.

Ruhlin is not a slugger. In mix-ups he is not quick to take advantage of openings, whereas Sharkey revels in that style of fighting, Ruhlin will have a big advantage in height and reach and will scale at 195 pounds as against Sharkey's 180. But there is a belief among fighting men that a puglilist once put to sleep by an opponent always possesses an inward fear of another knockout. If Ruhlin is apprehensive of such an ending the talent believe that Sharkey will stop him quickly, while on the other hand it is thought that if Ruhlin gets through the first five rounds without receiving much damage he will prove the toughest kind of a customer.

Ruhlin has never been prominent as a knocker out. He couldn't do the trick with Kid McCoy and even failed with Big Ed Dunkhorst. He has the honor of fighting a twenty-round draw with Jeffries, but that fight occurred when both men were greenhorns. The only man who ever succeeded in knocking Sharkey out was Fitzsimmons when he was declared the loser on an allegad foul in 'Frisco by Referee Wyatt Earp Sharkey was seyerely punished in that battle, more so than in any other during his ringcareer. Jeffries couldn't stop him in twenty-five rounds and for that reason it is hard to figure out how Ruhlin can do the trick in a similar period. This fight is not for the heavyweight championship but it is of particular interest, because the winner of it will probably be matched against Fitzsimmons or possibly Jeffries. Sharkey is an odds on favorite in the betting, 2 to 1 being the prevailing price. Much money will be wagered on the length of the fight, even money being obtainable now that Ruhlin dees not so more than ten rounds. The battle will be decided in that such a such a such respective such such as the price range from $1$ up an immense crowd is looked for.
